David A. Roemer is an experienced litigator whose practice focuses on high-exposure, complex civil litigation matters including construction accidents (New York Labor Law), premises liability claims, commercial automobile accidents, medical malpractice and products liability. He has extensive experience representing property owners, developers, general contractors, subcontractors, commercial automobile fleets, common carriers, and various other businesses and government entities.

Throughout his career, David has managed all phases of litigation, including initial investigation, discovery, depositions, motion practice, appeals, mediations, settlement negotiations, and trial. He has extensive experience analyzing construction contracts, leases, and other complex business agreements to develop and implement strategies designed to protect his clients' interests while minimizing costs and expenses.

David is recognized for his pragmatism, attention to detail, and ability to obtain favorable results efficiently and effectively. In addition, he mentors and trains associate attorneys and support staff in all aspects of litigation. David has also been involved in researching, testing and implementing various technology initiatives within legal organizations.

David earned his Bachelor of Arts in Government and Politics from the University of Maryland and obtained his Juris Doctor from the Quinnipiac School of Law, having also attended the Richardson School of Law, University of Hawaii. He is admitted to practice in New York and Connecticut, as well as the Eastern and Southern Districts of New York.
